Brief History

This year, over 20 million people will arrive in Indianapolis, and leave reluctantly!

As you land in Indianapolis, the first thing you'll notice is the airport. And not just in that "now-where-did-they-put-the-baggage-carousel-this-time" way. As the first new international airport in America designed and built after 9/11, Indianapolis International Airport was rated #1 (on everything from security to baggage claim) by travelers in a J.D. Power & Associates poll.

That big, blue building? That's the striking new Marriott Place—a 1,600-room complex that offers four different hotel brands at four different price points. Those and eight more of our many downtown hotels are conveniently linked to yet another new development: the combination of Lucas Oil Stadium and the vastly expanded Indiana Convention Center (which, taken together, rank as one of the nation's largest convention facilities). In the market for souvenirs? Circle Centre, a four-level urban mall anchored by Nordstrom and Carson Pirie Scott, is a downtown landmark. On the city's north side, The Fashion Mall at Keystone presents such options as Saks Fifth Avenue and Crate & Barrel. And smaller, uniquely local shops are found within the city's various Cultural Districts
